The report has to include the following sections:

- Title page
  Should include the project title, names of authors, class and instructor's name, project location (FGCU), and date of submission.

- Section 1. Introduction
  This section should contain general information on the project and the technology used, including information whether it's a continuation of a previous project or a new topic.

- Section 2. Definition of the Problem
  How do you understand the project objective, what is to be solved or done, your perception of what has to be accomplished.

- Section 3. Prospective Solution
  How would you approach solving the Problem defined in Section 2 (in general terms, perhaps quoting from work of others who dealt with identical or similar problems).

- Section 4. Implementation
  How the Solution ideas referred to in Section 3 are implemented. It should include a description of a working example (or case study), with complete code in the Appendix.

- Section 5. Conclusion
  General information on the results of the project, what was accomplished and what wasn't and why? Include statement on the next steps to be taken in this project to complete it successfully or expand it.

- Section 6. References
  List the literature you have used to study about this topic, in particular, about finding the technology, the best solution and implementation.

References. A reference in the text of the report should be numbered (surrounded by brackets, for example: [1]), and its corresponding source should be listed in the References section, in one of the following formats, depending if it's a book (or a report), a journal article, or an Internet source:

1. [1] Book Author(s), Book Title, Publisher, Place of Publication, Date of Publication
2. [2] Article Author(s), Article Title, Journal/Magazine Name, Volume Number (if identified), Issue Number, Page Numbers (for example, pp. 22-35), Year (or Month and Year, if available)
3. [3] Article Author(s) or Company Owning the Webpage, Article Title, Publisher (that is, company which produced this article), Place of Publication (if available), Date (if unspecified on the webpage, use the date of your access), URL
   (Providing only URL as a source is UNACCEPTABLE and subject to penalty!)

Illustrations. Please include into your Report as many illustrations as possible (pictures, diagrams, tables, etc.). Each illustration should be numbered and titled, and referred to from the text of the report. Illustrations taken from work published by others must include a reference to the source (this source must be listed in the References section).

Other Requirements. The report has to be written in 12 pts font, Times New Roman, with 1 and 1/2 space between lines, and submitted as .doc document (NOT .docx).
